17. Bringers of Wonder, Part 1

Screenplay: TERENCE FEELY
Director: TOM CLEGG

Koenig appears to have gone mad as he crashes his Eagle near the Nuclear Waste Domes on the Moon. While he's under medical observation, Helena hooks him up to a Brain Impulse Machine in the hope of curing him. Suddenly, from out of the void, comes a Superswift bearing the friends and relatives of the Alphans. They have come to rescue the castaways. When Koenig awakens, Helena informs him of the good news and he races to Command Center. But his eyes see neither friends nor relatives. The center is filled with hideous monsters and on the launch pad he does not see a Superswift, but a spacecraft of unknown design. Thinking the brain machine has failed, Helena sedates the now screaming Koenig. Guido Verdeschi then announces that Alan will fly the pilot ship back to Earth with two members of the nuclear monitoring team. Meanwhile, one of the creatures has entered Medical Center intent upon killing the Commander.

18. Bringers of Wonder, Part 2

Screenplay: TERENCE FEELY
Director: TOM CLEGG

Helena and Maya enter Medical Center in time to find Helena's old teacher, Dr. Shaw, near Koenig. He leaves as Koenig awakens. Koenig tries to convince the pair that he is sane. At the same time, Alan and the two men from the monitoring team believe that they have left Alpha and are flying to Earth in the pilot ship. In reality, they are aboard an Eagle heading toward the Nuclear Waste Domes. Koenig convinces Maya to try the brain machine and soon she sees the visitors as they really are. Transforming herself into one of them, she learns that the monsters need the raw energy of the nuclear waste to survive; they plan to detonate all the domes. As Carter and the two men approach the domes with the fusion rod that will explode the nuclear pile, Koenig races toward the area in a Moon buggy. All hope lies with Helena – she must find a way to prevent the weakened monsters from tapping Alpha's energy. If it can be done, they will be helpless to stop Koenig from interfering.
